CLINICAL FOCUS

A central part of Dr. Ince's practice is the assessment and management of trauma affecting the musculoskeletal system. This includes acute injuries to bones and joints, where the first steps are a careful clinical examination and a review of imaging to establish the extent of the damage and to decide whether non-surgical or surgical treatment is more appropriate.

Within sports medicine and sports traumatology, Dr. Ince sees patients with knee injuries, meniscal tears and other joint injuries related to sport or recreational activity. Meniscal tears vary widely in location, size and pattern, and not every tear requires an operation; the choice between conservative management and surgery is made on a case-by-case basis after examination and imaging review.
