CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Yüksek's areas of expertise include respiratory failure, sepsis and multiple organ failure. These conditions often develop in the context of serious infection, major surgery or acute illness, and they typically call for continuous observation, support of breathing and circulation, and adjustment of treatment as the patient's condition changes.

He also provides advanced life support and takes part in palliative care for patients with advanced or life-limiting illness. In this setting, the emphasis is on relieving symptoms, supporting comfort and discussing goals of care with patients and their families. Decisions about the level of intervention are individualized, and the suitability of any specific treatment depends on the clinical picture of each patient.
