CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Tepecik's field is clinical biochemistry. This involves the measurement and interpretation of chemical and biochemical markers in patient samples, for example parameters relating to organ function, metabolism and electrolytes, as requested by the treating physician.

His second area of expertise is laboratory diagnostic assessment more broadly. In this role he contributes to the quality and reliability of laboratory results and to their interpretation, so that clinicians in other departments have dependable data on which to base diagnostic and treatment decisions.
