CLINICAL FOCUS

A large part of Dr. Koç's practice is devoted to degenerative joint disease. He evaluates and treats osteoarthritis and other joint diseases, as well as osteoporosis, and he performs hip replacement surgery and knee replacement surgery for patients whose joint damage is no longer adequately managed with conservative measures. Meniscus tears of the knee also fall within his area of expertise.

Dr. Koç also works in spasticity surgery, including spasticity in children, where orthopedic procedures may be considered to address muscle tightness, joint contractures and related problems with posture and mobility. His work further includes deformity surgery and the management of trauma, ranging from acute injuries of bones and joints to their later consequences.
