CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Koç sees patients with glaucoma, a condition in which raised pressure inside the eye can damage the optic nerve over time and which is typically monitored and managed on an ongoing basis. He also assesses and treats cataract and keratoconus, a disorder in which the cornea gradually thins and changes shape.

Alongside these, Dr. Koç manages more common eye concerns such as myopia (short-sightedness) and conjunctivitis, as well as amblyopia, colour blindness and ocular migraine. The suitability of any examination or treatment depends on the individual patient's findings, and options are discussed after a clinical assessment.
