CLINICAL FOCUS

A central part of Dr. Bozgöl's work is the follow-up of newborns and young infants. This includes newborn screening tests, monitoring in the first weeks of life and the treatment of jaundice. He also sees families whose infants are affected by colic and gas pain, offering assessment and guidance on these frequent early concerns.

Dr. Bozgöl evaluates and treats a range of conditions encountered in childhood. These include iron deficiency and anemia in children, childhood constipation and childhood urinary incontinence. He also diagnoses and treats pediatric infectious diseases, including upper respiratory tract infections in children.
