CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Jalilova evaluates and manages a range of pediatric endocrine conditions. These include childhood thyroid disorders, childhood adrenal gland disorders, and pediatric diabetes. She also sees children with childhood obesity, where assessment considers the child's growth pattern, hormonal status, and individual symptoms.

A substantial part of her practice concerns growth and puberty. She assesses children with growth delay and short stature, as well as those with early puberty and other puberty and growth problems. She also provides care for children with differences in sex development.
