CLINICAL FOCUS

Periodontology is the branch of dentistry concerned with the gums and the tissues that support the teeth. Dr. Morçişek evaluates and treats gum disease, which can range from inflammation along the gum line to conditions affecting the deeper supporting structures. She also manages gum recession, in which the gum tissue pulls back from the tooth and may expose part of the root;

In addition to disease-oriented care, Dr. Morçişek works on the aesthetic aspects of the gums. Patients who feel that too much gum tissue shows when they smile may be evaluated for a gummy smile, and in suitable cases Botox may be considered as one option to reduce the visible gum display. Whether a given approach is appropriate is decided after a clinical examination and a discussion of the patient's expectations.
