CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Selbes's practice covers anesthesia care and anesthesiology and reanimation. In anesthesia care, her work typically begins before a procedure with an assessment of the patient's general health, existing medical conditions, current medications and any previous experiences with anesthesia.

During a procedure, the anesthesiologist is responsible for administering anesthesia and for continuously monitoring vital functions such as breathing, heart rate and blood pressure, adjusting care as needed. Afterward, attention turns to the recovery phase, including the management of pain and the observation of the patient as the effects of anesthesia wear off.
