CLINICAL FOCUS

A substantial part of Dr. Sözen's practice involves the assessment and management of childhood infectious diseases, including upper respiratory tract infections and the rash illnesses of childhood. She evaluates and treats children with chickenpox, measles, rubella, and scarlet fever.

Dr. Sözen also follows the growth and nutrition of children over time. This includes childhood nutrition monitoring, the evaluation and treatment of iron deficiency and anemia in children, and the management of constipation. In the newborn period she provides follow-up visits, including screening tests, and treats newborn jaundice.
