CLINICAL FOCUS

The core of Dr. İlksöz's work is anesthesia: assessing patients before a procedure, planning and delivering anesthetic care during surgery or other interventions, and monitoring the patient through recovery. This includes reviewing a patient's medical history, current medications and previous experiences with anesthesia so that the anesthetic approach can be adapted to the individual and to the planned procedure.

Her practice also encompasses reanimation and intensive care. This involves the care of critically ill patients and of patients who require close monitoring and organ support after major surgery or during acute illness. Her earlier work in prehospital emergency medical services and her residency in anesthesiology and reanimation form the background for this part of her practice.
