CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Özcabı evaluates and manages endocrine and metabolic concerns in children and adolescents. Her areas of expertise include childhood obesity, childhood diabetes, and pediatric thyroid disorders. In these conditions, assessment generally involves reviewing the child's medical history, growth pattern, and any previous laboratory results, followed by a clinical examination and, where appropriate, further testing.

A further part of her practice is dedicated to growth and adolescence. This includes the assessment of growth delay and short stature, as well as early puberty. Growth concerns are typically examined in the context of family history, nutrition, general health, and the timing of pubertal development, so that parents receive an explanation of the likely causes and of the options that may be considered.
