CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Yel's area of expertise is prosthetic dental treatment, the branch of dentistry concerned with replacing missing teeth and restoring the function and appearance of the mouth. Within this field she concentrates on removable prostheses. Total dentures are considered for patients who have no remaining natural teeth in the upper or lower jaw, or in both.

Planning a denture generally begins with an assessment of the patient's oral health, the condition of any remaining teeth and the supporting tissues, and the patient's expectations regarding chewing, speech and appearance. Dr. Yel's doctoral training and her clinical practice in the Total-Partial Prostheses Clinic have been directed toward this type of treatment.
