CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Savaşçın's areas of expertise cover gastrointestinal surgery, colorectal surgery and oncological surgery. In the colorectal field he assesses and treats rectal cancer and juvenile rectal polyps, and he performs hemorrhoid surgery. He also sees patients with inflammatory bowel disease in whom a surgical option may need to be considered.

Whether an operation is appropriate, and which surgical approach is suitable, depends on the individual diagnosis, the findings of imaging and other investigations, and the patient's general health. These questions are reviewed with each patient, and the possible benefits and risks of the available options are discussed before any decision about treatment is made.
