CLINICAL FOCUS

A central part of Dr. Turan's practice is well-child monitoring, the routine follow-up of a child's growth, development and general health over time. This type of follow-up is intended to identify concerns early and to give parents a clear picture of how their child is progressing.

Dr. Turan also sees children with upper respiratory tract illnesses, which are among the most common reasons families seek pediatric care. In addition, his work covers iron deficiency in children and pediatric anemia. Evaluation of these conditions generally involves a review of the child's history, symptoms and any existing laboratory results, followed by a clinical examination and a discussion with the family about...

INTERNATIONAL PATIENTS

Dr. Turan consults in Turkish and English, and interpreters can be arranged for families who prefer another language. The Acibadem international patient team coordinates the collection of prior reports and imaging, arranges appointments and organises the hospital visit, so that relevant records are available before the family arrives.
