CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Bali's work is centered on clinical laboratory services and medical biochemistry. This includes the laboratory testing that supports the evaluation of patients by clinicians in other departments, such as biochemical analyses of blood and other samples.

His areas of expertise also include healthcare management, reflecting both his postgraduate training in health management and his long experience in chief physician and deputy chief physician roles. This background relates to the organization and operation of hospital and laboratory services rather than to the direct treatment of specific conditions.
