CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Solakoğlu's clinical focus is intensive care treatment for patients whose condition requires continuous monitoring and organ support. This includes advanced life support, in which breathing, circulation and other vital functions are supported while the underlying illness is assessed and treated.

A second area of his work is palliative care, which aims to relieve symptoms and support comfort and quality of life for patients with serious or advanced illness. Closely related is pain management, drawing on his background in anesthesiology and reanimation. Where appropriate, pain treatment may be considered alongside the hospital's interventional pain management services.
