CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Altunay's clinical practice covers a range of ear, nose and throat conditions. In the field of hearing, he evaluates hearing loss in adults and pediatric hearing loss, as well as tinnitus. He also assesses patients with vertigo, in which the inner ear is one of several possible sources of symptoms; the evaluation aims to clarify the likely cause before any treatment is considered.

His practice also includes conditions of the throat and upper airway, such as hoarseness and swallowing difficulties, and sleep-related complaints, including snoring and other sleep disorders. On the surgical side, he performs septoplasty for patients with a deviated nasal septum and sinus surgery for selected patients with sinus disease.
