CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Uçar's emergency practice covers acute injuries and time-sensitive conditions. Trauma is one of his main areas of work, with assessment of injured patients and management of their immediate needs. He also treats breathing-related emergencies, including airway obstruction and acute hypoxia, where early recognition of reduced oxygen supply and support of the airway are central to care.

A further part of his work involves environmental emergencies, which are relevant in a coastal setting such as Bodrum. These include drowning and related incidents, as well as insect bites and stings. Within this group he manages bee stings and tick bites, where the clinical picture can range from local reactions to more significant systemic responses.
