CLINICAL FOCUS

Ece Ataç Geriş concentrates on the audiological assessment of patients with hearing-related concerns. Her areas of expertise include hearing loss in adults and hearing loss in children, where careful, age-appropriate testing supports the diagnostic work of the ENT team.

A central part of her work is audiometry, the measurement of a person's hearing across different frequencies and loudness levels. The results of these tests help to describe the type and degree of hearing loss and provide the treating physicians with the information they need to discuss possible next steps with the patient or, in the case of children, with their families.
