CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Yildirim's work centers on emergency medicine, which involves the assessment and initial management of patients who present with acute symptoms. This includes taking a focused history, performing a clinical examination, requesting and interpreting the tests appropriate to the presentation, and deciding whether a patient can be treated and discharged, needs a period of observation, or should be referred to a specialist...

A second strand of his experience is acute geriatrics and geriatric medicine, which concern the care of older adults. These patients often have several coexisting conditions and may present in the emergency setting with less typical symptoms, so careful assessment is important.
