CLINICAL FOCUS

The core of Dr. Özmutlu's clinical practice is orthognathic surgery, the surgical correction of jaw position and alignment. A frequent indication within this area is jaw retrusion, in which the upper or lower jaw sits further back than expected and may affect bite, facial balance, chewing or speech.

Dr. Özmutlu also sees patients with trismus (jaw locking), in which the ability to open the mouth is restricted, and with temporomandibular joint disorders, which may present with pain in the jaw joint or surrounding muscles, clicking, or limited or altered movement.
