CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Çengelli's clinical work centers on the surgical treatment of the teeth, jaws and surrounding structures. A significant part of his practice involves dental implants and the procedures that prepare the jaw for them, including bone grafting and sinus lifting where the available bone is limited.

He also treats conditions affecting the jaw joint and the muscles of the face. These include temporomandibular joint disorders, trismus (restricted opening of the mouth) and bruxism, which he treats with Botox and night guards depending on the clinical picture. For patients whose jaws are misaligned, he offers orthognathic surgery, which is planned on an individual basis after clinical and radiological assessment.
