Anesthesiology &
Reanimation

CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Saka's primary area of practice is anesthesia and reanimation. This involves assessing patients before a procedure, planning and delivering anesthesia during treatment, and monitoring recovery afterward. The perioperative assessment considers the patient's medical history, current medications, and the nature of the planned procedure so that the anesthetic approach can be adjusted to the individual clinical situation.

A further area of his work is advanced life support, which concerns the structured management of patients whose vital functions are acutely compromised. He is also involved in palliative care, an approach that focuses on relieving symptoms and supporting comfort in patients with serious illness.
