CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Çilsal's clinical interests cover a range of pediatric heart conditions. He evaluates and follows children with congenital heart disease, including atrial septal defect (ASD), and manages cardiomyopathy and heart failure in pediatric patients. He also assesses children with heart valve disorders.

Cardiac catheterization is among the procedures within his area of expertise. Whether a particular examination or procedure is appropriate for an individual child is determined after clinical evaluation and review of the available findings, and the options are discussed with the family.
