CLINICAL FOCUS

A large part of Dr. Hürmüzlü's practice involves the evaluation and management of infections of the lower respiratory tract and other communicable diseases. He also sees patients with sexually transmitted infections, including syphilis and HPV, and provides diagnostic assessment, treatment and follow-up in line with each patient's clinical picture.

Preventive care is another area of his work. Dr. Hürmüzlü advises adults on vaccination appropriate to their age, health status and exposure risk, and offers travel health guidance for patients planning to visit regions where specific infectious risks may be present. He also assesses and treats patients with shingles, with attention to symptom control and the recognition of complications.
