CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Akbulut's areas of expertise are neonatal intensive care, newborn monitoring and newborn treatment. Newborns admitted to a neonatal intensive care unit may need continuous observation of vital functions, supportive care and medical treatment adapted to their condition and stage of development.

Because each newborn's situation is different, the type and duration of care can vary considerably, and decisions are discussed with the family as the clinical course develops. Families seeking general background on one of the conditions that may be encountered in neonatal units can find information on this site about neonatal sepsis treatment;
