CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Çetin's clinical work covers child and adolescent health from the first days of life onward. In the newborn period, she carries out newborn follow-up, reviews and interprets newborn screening tests, and assesses and manages newborn jaundice. She also advises families on infant colic, a frequent concern during the early months.

For older infants, children, and adolescents, Dr. Çetin diagnoses and treats upper respiratory tract infections and other childhood infectious diseases. She evaluates growth and developmental disorders in children and provides ongoing monitoring of childhood nutritional disorders, so that changes in weight, height, or feeding can be identified and discussed at follow-up visits.
