CLINICAL FOCUS

Anesthesiology and reanimation generally covers the assessment of patients before a procedure, the planning and administration of anesthesia, monitoring during the procedure and care in the recovery period. Dr. Zamanova's involvement usually begins with a pre-anesthetic evaluation, in which the patient's medical history, current medications, allergies and previous experiences with anesthesia are reviewed so that an...

Advanced life support refers to the structured management of patients whose circulation or breathing is severely compromised, including in critical and emergency situations. Palliative care is a further area of interest; in this setting an anesthesiologist's experience with pain and symptom management may contribute to the care of patients with serious illness, alongside the treating team.
