CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Çolak's clinical work centers on diagnostic radiology, the interpretation and reporting of imaging examinations that referring physicians use when assessing a patient's condition. In hospital-based radiology, this involves reviewing imaging studies, describing the findings in a structured report and, where relevant, comparing them with earlier examinations so that changes over time can be recognized.

His second area of expertise is advanced diagnostic imaging. In practice this means working with imaging methods that provide more detailed anatomical or functional information than a basic examination, and interpreting them in the context of the clinical question raised by the referring doctor.
