CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Avci's clinical work centers on the everyday health needs of children from birth onward. A large part of her practice is well-child care: scheduled visits in which growth, development, and general health are reviewed, and age-appropriate guidance is given to parents.

She also assesses and manages common childhood complaints. These include upper respiratory tract illnesses such as colds, sore throat, and related infections, as well as constipation in children, which is evaluated with attention to diet, bowel habits, and any underlying contributing factors. Dr.
