CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Girgin's clinical work covers child and adolescent health across age groups. A large part of his practice is dedicated to newborn follow-up, including the assessment and monitoring of newborn jaundice, infant colic, and the care of newborns affected by hypoxic-ischemic encephalopathy or bronchopulmonary dysplasia, which may require...

In general pediatrics, Dr. Girgin sees children with croup and other upper respiratory tract infections, constipation, and iron deficiency and anemia. Depending on the child's age and presentation, assessment may include a review of the history, a physical examination, and laboratory testing where indicated, followed by a discussion of...
