CLINICAL FOCUS

A significant part of Dr. Öztürk's practice involves acute abdominal pain and the acute abdomen, where the priority is to distinguish conditions that need urgent surgical or medical attention from those that can be managed more conservatively. This includes the evaluation of suspected appendicitis and cholecystitis, as well as the recognition and initial management of internal bleeding.

Dr. Öztürk also manages life-threatening presentations such as cardiopulmonary arrest, brain hemorrhage, respiratory failure and airway obstruction, along with drowning-related acute hypoxia. In these situations, the immediate goals are to secure the airway, support breathing and circulation, and arrange further specialist care where needed.
