CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Görümlü's clinical interests cover several groups of solid tumors. In gastrointestinal oncology, he evaluates and cares for patients with pancreatic cancer, gastric cancer and colorectal cancer, including colon cancer and rectal cancer, as well as peritoneal cancer. In gynecologic oncology, his areas of expertise include ovarian cancer and endometrial cancer. He also sees patients with breast cancer and bladder cancer.

Thoracic malignancies form a further part of his practice, in particular lung cancer and other thoracic cancers. Across these tumor types, his role as a medical oncologist is to review the available pathology, imaging and previous treatments, to consider the stage of disease and the patient's overall condition, and to explain the medical oncology options in a way that patients and their families can understand.
