CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Balkaya's practice centers on anesthesiology and reanimation. This includes the assessment of patients before surgery, the planning and administration of anesthesia, monitoring during the procedure and care in the recovery period. Perioperative care forms a central part of his work, with attention to the patient's overall condition, existing medical conditions and current medications when preparing an anesthesia plan.

His subspecialty interest is intensive care. In this setting he is involved in the management of patients who need close monitoring and organ support, including patients recovering from major surgery or with critical illness. The approach is individualized: the level of care and the treatments used depend on each patient's clinical picture and are reviewed as the situation changes.
