CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Temiz's clinical work centers on nuclear medicine diagnostic imaging and molecular imaging. These studies are requested by treating physicians to help assess organ function and disease activity, and Dr. Temiz's role includes supervising the examination and interpreting the findings in the context of the patient's history and existing imaging.

He also works in radionuclide therapy, in which a radioactive agent is administered for treatment purposes under nuclear medicine supervision. Whether radionuclide therapy is appropriate depends on the individual diagnosis, prior treatments and the recommendations of the treating specialists, and it is planned together with the referring physicians.
