CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Kendirli's areas of expertise include environmental emergencies such as drowning, acute hypoxia and airway obstruction. In these situations, early assessment of breathing and circulation and protection of the airway are priorities, while the underlying cause of the emergency is identified and addressed.

His work further covers emergency interventions, burn treatment and trauma care. Emergency assessment of burns and injuries generally involves evaluating the extent and severity of the injury, stabilizing the patient and determining whether further specialist treatment or admission to the hospital is needed.
