CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Doğu's specialty is anesthesiology, a field that covers the planning and delivery of anesthesia for procedures as well as the monitoring and support of patients during and after those procedures. Within this broader specialty, the two areas listed as his particular focus are palliative care and advanced life support.

Palliative care in this context refers to the medical management of symptoms and the support of patients living with serious or advanced illness. The specific approach depends on the individual patient's condition and is discussed with the patient and, where appropriate, with family members.
