CLINICAL FOCUS

A significant part of Dr. Doğan's work involves the assessment and treatment of coronary artery disease. He performs coronary angiography to visualize the coronary arteries and, where the findings support it, percutaneous coronary intervention to open narrowed or blocked vessels.

In structural and valvular heart disease, Dr. Doğan evaluates patients with aortic valve stenosis and, for suitable candidates, performs transcatheter aortic valve implantation, a catheter-based alternative to open valve surgery. He also sees patients with atrial septal defect, a congenital opening between the upper chambers of the heart.
