CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Yalçın's areas of expertise reflect the range of situations seen in an emergency department. He evaluates and manages patients with trauma, from isolated injuries to more complex presentations that require structured initial assessment, stabilization and, where needed, referral to other specialties. A further area of his practice is environmental emergencies, a group of conditions caused by exposure to external factors.

He also treats acute hypoxia, in which the body's oxygen supply is suddenly reduced, and airway obstruction, in which breathing is impaired by a blockage of the upper or lower airway. Both conditions are time-sensitive and are approached with prompt evaluation, securing of oxygenation and the airway, and identification of the underlying cause so that appropriate treatment can follow.
