CLINICAL FOCUS

A central part of Dr. Aslan's practice is the evaluation of women with low ovarian reserve. This typically begins with a detailed history and a review of any previous fertility assessments or treatments. AMH testing (anti-Müllerian hormone testing) is one of the laboratory investigations used in this evaluation, and Dr.

Dr. Aslan also advises women who are considering egg freezing as a fertility preservation option. Consultations in this area cover the medical background, the practical steps involved and the questions a patient may wish to weigh before making a decision. Whether egg freezing or another approach is appropriate depends on the individual situation, and Dr.
