CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Bari's practice covers child and adolescent health from the newborn period onward. She carries out newborn follow-up and healthy child follow-up, which typically includes monitoring growth and development over time. She also evaluates child developmental disorders and childhood nutritional disorders, and she assesses and manages infant colic and constipation in children.

A further part of her work involves pediatric infectious diseases. This includes upper respiratory tract infections in children, croup, and chickenpox. Her approach is based on age-appropriate assessment, follow-up, and guidance for families on preventive care and on common childhood health concerns.
