CLINICAL FOCUS

A central part of Dr. Güllerci's practice is orthognathic surgery, which addresses the position and relationship of the upper and lower jaws. Within this area she evaluates patients with jaw retrusion, a condition in which one of the jaws sits further back than expected in relation to the rest of the face.

Dr. Güllerci also assesses and manages trismus, also known as jaw locking, in which the ability to open the mouth is restricted. Because limited jaw opening can have a range of underlying causes, her approach begins with a careful clinical examination and a review of available imaging to understand the likely origin of the problem. Treatment options are then discussed with the patient in light of these findings.
