CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Albert's main area of practice is inpatient ward care. In this role a ward physician follows patients who have been admitted to the hospital, reviews their clinical status during the stay, monitors laboratory and other results as they become available, and communicates with the specialist teams responsible for the patient's treatment.

Her second area of expertise is exercise stress testing. This is a monitored examination in which the patient exercises according to a set protocol while heart rate, blood pressure and the electrocardiogram are recorded. The test is requested by the treating physician when information about the heart's response to physical exertion is needed.
