CLINICAL FOCUS

The core of Dr. Avcı's practice is respiratory rehabilitation. This area of rehabilitation medicine addresses patients whose breathing difficulties limit their day-to-day activity and exercise tolerance. The starting point is a structured evaluation of how the patient's respiratory status affects function, drawing on the medical history, previous reports and a clinical examination.

Her work also covers respiratory therapy and respiratory care, which support patients through different phases of a respiratory condition and its recovery. In practice, this involves working with the patient to understand what is realistic, monitoring progress and coordinating with other members of the Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation team where a broader rehabilitation plan is needed.
