CLINICAL FOCUS

The clinical focus of Dr. Üzüm is congenital heart diseases in children. Congenital heart disease refers to structural differences of the heart or the large vessels that are present at birth. These conditions vary widely in type and severity, and the appropriate approach depends on the individual child, the specific finding, and how the child is developing over time.

In his work as a pediatric cardiologist, Dr. Üzüm evaluates children with suspected or known congenital heart disease and provides ongoing management based on the clinical picture. This may include reviewing previous findings, carrying out a clinical assessment, and discussing with parents what the findings mean and which options may be considered.
