CLINICAL FOCUS

The core of Dr. Atalan's work is anesthesia care. In general terms, this involves assessing a patient before a procedure, discussing the anesthetic approach with the patient and the treating team, administering and monitoring anesthesia during the procedure, and overseeing the early recovery phase.

His subspecialty interest is intensive care. Intensive care medicine concerns the monitoring and treatment of patients whose condition requires close observation and organ support, for example after major surgery or during a serious illness. Closely related to this is reanimation, which refers to the resuscitation and stabilization of patients in acute, life-threatening situations.
