CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Ramiz evaluates and treats a range of internal medicine conditions. His areas of expertise include anemia, where the assessment typically involves identifying the underlying cause before medical treatment is planned, and hypertension, which is usually managed through ongoing monitoring and adjustment of medication alongside lifestyle considerations.

A significant part of his practice is chronic disease management. This involves reviewing a patient's existing diagnoses and current medications, coordinating the medical treatment of coexisting conditions and setting up a follow-up plan. Treatment recommendations depend on the individual patient's history, examination findings and test results, and are discussed with the patient before any plan is agreed.
