CLINICAL FOCUS

A significant part of Dr. Samadlı's work involves common chronic conditions that are managed with medication and regular follow-up. She evaluates and treats patients with anemia, which may involve identifying the underlying cause before deciding on treatment, and patients with hypertension, where treatment is adjusted over time according to blood pressure readings and the patient's overall health.

Dr. Samadlı also has a clinical interest in digestive organ diseases as they present in internal medicine. This includes liver diseases such as fatty liver disease and liver failure, as well as biliary tract diseases and pancreatic diseases.
