CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Korkmaz's practice is centered on general surgery and obesity surgery. In general surgery, he assesses patients with conditions that may require a surgical opinion and discusses whether an operation is appropriate, taking into account the individual's history, examination findings and existing investigations.

In obesity surgery, Dr. Korkmaz evaluates patients who are considering a surgical approach to weight management. This evaluation typically includes a review of the patient's medical history, previous attempts at weight reduction and any associated health conditions, so that suitability for surgery can be judged carefully. Where surgery is not considered appropriate, this is explained to the patient along with the reasoning.
